I imagine the forest, the forest all alone. It might sound quiet at first but when the wind blows on it, it sounds like the symphony. If a person walks in on it, it's like a symphony for free. Then if it starts to rain, a rainbow will form. Each color stands for a different instrument. Red is like the violin, viola and the bass. Orange is like the triangle. Yellow is like the flute and jazz music. Green is like the drums and bongos. Blue is like the piano. Purple is people playing the instruments. The rainbow is an orchestra. It may not look like one but if you listen in your heart, it is the best symphony you have ever heard.
